Camps and Excursions Guidelines

PREAMBLE:

Camps and excursions are a valuable part of a student's educational program. As much of a student's learning occurs outside the confines of a classroom, camps and excursions are a means of using resources to enhance and enrich student learning.

All students need equitable access in participating therefore; teaching staff discuss with senior staff any concerns they have about individual family financial situations which may prohibit individual student participation; at this point decisions to use the social justice fund are made.

Camps and excursions are planned to support curriculum area and serve an educational purpose. Teachers build into their class-teaching program a lead-up to camps/excursions and a follow-up afterwards. This may involve all areas of study and may cover a term or part thereof. With this in mind camps and excursions will generally be organised on a "class" rather than a "year-level" basis. (Exceptions to this may occur where there are stringent guidelines associated with age limit criteria such as swimming and aquatics).

It is not an expectation that every teacher will be able to take his/her class on a school camp. This will depend on a teacher's personal situation and circumstance. Teachers unable to take their class on camp, negotiate with other staff members about their participation on class camps.

In the situation of composite classes all students in the class will attend the camp or excursion planned by the class teacher if and when it is related to the curriculum and/or applicable.

Students with severe and multiple disabilities are also be given the opportunity to participate in camps and excursions. Teaching staff with the support of senior staff need to:

- develop risk assessment plan
- plan for excursions and camps well ahead of time
- inform front office staff of planning well ahead of time.

PRINCIPLES:

The school aims to provide 'camp like' and excursion opportunities for students so that they may:

- learn in and out of class/school situations
- live and work in groups, outside of home and school environment
- further develop social skills such as co-operation, tolerance, communication, individual and group interaction
- further develop their problem solving and life survival skills
- interact with adults and other students on a closer personal level than is normally achieved in the classroom situation
- extend their understanding of their physical and cultural environment
